

Euphorbia acruensis

Desert Candle Cactus

Origin

Euphorbia Acrurensis is also commonly known as the “desert candle cactus.” This type of plant originated from dry areas of Zimbabwe and South Africa.

Features

It has slender ribbed stems that grow like a chandelier and has oval leaves. When placed indoors, your Euphorbia Acrurensis can grow up to 5-8 feet tall with proper care.

Is Euphorbia Acrurensis Toxic?

It would help if you stayed careful when touching your Euphorbia Acrurensis. Like all plants belonging to the Euphorbia genus, it has white milky sap once cut open. This sap is poisonous, caused severe skin irritation and blindness. You will have to be careful when touching the plant directly. Also, make sure that you don't leave your kids and pets unattended near this succulent. The white sap is highly poisonous when digested.

