

Peacock Echeveria

Echeveria Desmetiana

Somewhat unusual and possibly hard to find, the Peacock echeveria is a fast-growing succulent plant with rosettes up to 6 inches (15 cm.) across. It is unusual for a succulent to report fast growth. Leaves of the rosette are streaked a silvery-blue with pink to red tips and are slightly thinner than other echeveria plants. Let's learn more about growing a Peacock echeveria succulent. Peacock Echeveria Info Found under the names Cotyledon peacockii or Echeveria desmetiana 'Peacockii,' this plant is advertised as rare. Some sell seeds online at the same price as most sell the plants, under $5. I personally have never grown a succulent from a seed but, as a horticulturist, I assume it is possible. All my young succulents are started from leaves or cuttings.
